PARRIOTT WOOD ASSEMBLED CABINETS: TESTED FOR SUPERIOR QUALITY & DURABILITY

What is KCMA Certification?

Parriott Wood's assembled cabinets have officially earned KCMA (Kitchen Cabinet Manufacturers Association) Certification, a mark of excellence in cabinet durability, strength, and performance. This certification assures that our cabinets meet the highest industry standards, proving their ability to withstand everyday wear and tear in real-world conditions.

KCMA Testing Standards & What It Means for Our Cabinets

Our assembled cabinets have passed rigorous independent laboratory testing to ensure quality.

Structural Tests	Drawer Tests	Door Tests	Finish Tests
Shelves and Bottoms Wall-Mounted Cabinets Base Joints Drop Test	Weight Test Structural Strength	Stress Test Load Test	Heat Test Cold Test Spill Test Stain Test

Our cabinets withstood 15 lbs./sq. ft. on shelves for 7 days, 600 lbs. on wall units, 250 lbs. at base joints (200 lbs. without rails), and a 3-lb. ball drop from 6 inches—no damage or failure.

Drawers are tested to withstand 15 lbs. per square foot over 25,000 cycles and endure impact tests without damage, ensuring lasting durability.

Durability test ensures doors withstand 25,000 open-close cycles, while a load test applies 65 lbs. over 10 cycles to confirm strength and stability.

Finish tests expose cabinets to extreme temperatures, humidity, and common spills, ensuring heat resistance, material stability, and stain protection.
